

- »- at least one of the main characters is a woman
- the main woman character does not die at the end, especially if she flaunts moral and sexual conventions
- the main woman character does more than be helpless and/or sleep with the main man character
- no rapes against women unless it deals with the consequences
- no ›glamorous‹ female naked corpses
- more eating pussy and clitoral stimulation during sex scenes if there are any
- no shopping montages
- no makeovers
- must have at least one guy in the cast who straight girls would want to French kiss
- no dissing fat girls
- no male fantasy lesbian make out scenes
- beautiful girls only fall head over heels in love with ugly loser guys if he's rich or gives good head
- the main woman character must have one real friend who doesn't fuck her over at the end because of jealousy over a man
- a woman must either be the writer or director of the film
- women - claim your credit! If you directed the film, say so! No more holding back to not intimidate others (especially if you are ›producing‹ your ›director‹ boyfriend)«

Die 2004
verstorbene
Regisseurin
Sarah
Jacobson.

aus 'Riot GRRRL Revisited: Geschichte und Gegenwart einer feministischen Bewegung'
Peglow & Engelmann (Hrsg.)

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN, GRRRLS ON FILM

Zoll Ventil Verlag